

COLBY AT HEAD OF WILSON QUARTERS

Former Moose in Full Charge at Offices of Campaign Committee.

TAMMANY SEES NO HOPE

South Dakota Visitor Tells McCormick Hughes Offends Progressives There.

Bainbridge Colby, suave and smiling, was "running things" in Democratic national headquarters in Forty-second street yesterday. He and not Vance C. McCormick, the national chairman, is now the important person in Wilson campaign affairs, it is said.

As head of the so-called Progressive auxiliary committee of the Democratic national campaign committee, the man who is to deliver the Progressive vote to Wilson, Colby has become in the eyes of the President's friends a kind of "White House Hope," everybody in headquarters from McCormick down bows to him.

President Wilson was extremely affable to Colby at the recent luncheon to the Progressive "auxiliaries" in the White House. The Wilson campaign managers, following the President's lead, miss no opportunity to credit any former Progressive, however obscure, who announces he is for Wilson. Some little ingenuously, in fact, is being shown in the discovery of former Progressives, or men who are ready to go as such, who are for the Democratic candidate.

How Tammany Views It.

A Tammany leader yesterday commenting on this phase of the Democratic campaign said to him it seemed a pathetic attempt to find hope where there was no hope.

"Wilson is giving his case away. It seems to me," the Tammany man remarked. "The big issue he is making over the Progressive vote is a plain admission that without it he feels he will be defeated, and, of course, he won't get it."

Bainbridge Colby professes to believe otherwise.

"We are getting in touch with Progressives all over the country, and are receiving favorable reports from members of the party who are favorable to President Wilson," he said. He was asked if he intended to credit the Independence League nomination for United States Senator.

"I consider the action of the Independence League in designating me for the office a great compliment," he replied. He did not say he would accept.

One of McCormick's visitors yesterday was James Mee, national committee man for South Dakota, who assured him Wilson undoubtedly would carry that State. Again, it was a case of what the Progressives are going to do for the Democratic candidate. Mee said Progressives in the West are taking offense at the attitude of Hughes, regarding his friendly relations with their old Guard Republican enemies as an intimation that Progressives are not desired in the Hughes camp.

"That is exactly what is learned from other sources in the West," said McCormick, endorsing the views of the South Dakota leader. "It is exactly what Progressives all over the country can expect from Mr. Hughes. They know if Hughes is elected it will be a stand pat Administration."

A. T. Hopkins of Wyoming reported by mail to the national chairman that the prospects of a Democratic victory in that State are bright. Hopkins said he made an automobile tour of Wyoming recently and found many Republicans who openly declared their intention to ignore their own party candidate this year and vote for Wilson.

The National Democratic Club in this city announced yesterday it planned to take an active part in the Wilson campaign. John M. McKillop, the president of the club, has appointed a campaign committee, with Charles B. Alexander as chairman, the members including Samuel Untermyer, ex-Mayor George H. Stetson, John Whelan, George W. Loft and Abram I. Elkus. Alexander, chairman of the committee, will give an informal dinner to the members in the club, Fifth avenue and Fifth street, tomorrow night.

CATHOLICS TO HAVE AN AMERICAN SAINT

Beatification Indicated for Father Jogues, Martyred by Indians in 1652.

Father Isaac Jogues, tortured and put to death by the Indians in 1652 at Auriesville, N. Y., will be declared a saint within a reasonably short time, the first saint whose field of work was the North American continent.

This is indicated by a cable message received yesterday by the Rev. John J. Wynne, editor of the Catholic Encyclopedia, from the Rev. Charles Macksey of the Gregorian University, Rome. The message said the Congregation of Rites is formally considering the matter, which means the hard work of the process is over.

Father Jogues's claim to beatification first was taken up in 1903. Documents and evidence had been studied by church scholars interested in his work and the work of Breton, Lalonde, Daniel and Garnier, other missionaries put to death by the Indians in Canada. This material was laid before a tribunal in Quebec, which was headed by the present Cardinal Lacombe. The Rev. Arthur Jones of Montreal, the Rev. Daniel Lowery of the Albany diocese, in which Father Jogues was martyred, the Rev. T. J. Campbell and the Rev. Father Wynne of New York, all of whom had been students of the early history of the church in America, were witnesses before the tribunal.

The evidence was submitted to the proper authorities at Rome, where it was thrashed over according to the time-hallowed method of selecting advocates for the canonization and a device advocated to oppose it in every way possible. Both of these having finally consented to the formal introduction of the cause before the Congregation of Rites, it is considered merely a matter of a short time before the beatification will be announced.

A curious bit of evidence brought out at the hearing in Quebec was that a Protestant clergyman had gone so far in his veneration of Father Jogues as to place a stained glass effigy of him in his church.

There is a shrine in honor of the missionary at Auriesville on the site where the Mohawks put him to death. The Rev. John J. Seely is in charge of it and is the one who now is looking after the process of Father Jogues's beatification in America.

The convention will be the greatest religious event of its kind ever held in New York. Thousands of laymen and clergymen from all over the United States are now in the city for the congress. All of this week will be devoted to conferences and religious exercises.

CATHOLICS ATTACK POLICY OF WILSON

F. J. Muldoon of Rockford, Ill., chairman of the social service committee of the federation, spoke of the necessity of a unified program which would be of benefit to the thought of all Catholics, and suggested the appointment of a temporary committee of five to consider the question.

Dr. J. J. Kirby, professor of economics in the Catholic University, Washington, D. C., was named, along with the Rev. Edward F. Garsche of St. Louis, J. J. Noll of Huntington, Ind., editor of the Sunday Visitor, the Rev. Peter E. Dietz of Hot Springs, N. C., secretary of the social service committee of the federation, and J. F. Kenkel, director of the central bureau of the St. Louis Verein.

These five recommended a commission of nine persons which should be of permanent character and should obtain the Catholic sentiment regarding social service in charities and education. From this movement may spring a Catholic Chautauqua. The recommendation was submitted to the executive board of the federation and to the Catholic Press Association, which turned the matter over to committees.

Pontifical Mass To-day.

This will be one of the larger issues of the week, for Catholics are taking a greater interest in social service since Wright's work to return for money loaned to him by her husband, Alfred Klein.

The Hampton Galleries A Storehouse of Beauty

THAT subtle sense of unity which pervaded the Living Rooms of Elizabethan England and gathered into one delightful harmony Furniture, Paintings and Decorations, as well as the time-mellowed surroundings of paneled walls and coffered ceilings, today seems richly worth the striving for.

The Hampton Shops have made this possible of attainment by offering, not alone the Furniture for such rooms as these, but also such aids as help to give this Furniture its meaning—the Rugs, for instance, from Persian Isfahan or distant Cathay; the lamp, suggesting the famed lantern-light of the princely Strozzi, or the fabrics, striking, each one, its note of quaintness or of opulence.
